Forum Speakers

Arkansas-Nigerian Economic Development Forum is pleased to have some of the worlds most influential experts as speakers at this important event.

H. E. Professor Ibidapo Adebowale Adefuye
Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the Federal Republic of Nigeria to the USA
 His Excellency, Prof. Adefuye hails from Ogun State and obtained his PhD in History at the age of 26. He is a conflict and governance specialist with 24 years of experience in international affairs and development, backed by 12 years previous experience in research and teaching. Professor Adefuye is a seasoned diplomat and currently Nigeria's Ambassador to the United States. His expertise and experience in diplomacy and conflict resolution has contributed immensely in fostering the foreign relations between the United States and Nigeria, as well as strengthening the economic ties between both countries under the prevailing legislation of the African Growth and Opportunity Act (AGOA).
 As Ambassador Adefuye has been guiding and mediating continuing negotiations between the leaders of rival political parties so as to arrive at peaceful solutions to disputes and thus avoid civil strife. He has also been encouraging, assisting Governments to amend existing or draft new Constitutions and supervising the organization of credible elections. The major focus of his assignments has been the creation of a politically suitable climate that will be conducive to sustainable social and economic development. Working as a Special Adviser to Commonwealth Secretary-General on Africa Affairs in 2000, and Adviser to ECOWAS President on Democracy and Good Governance in 2008, Professor Adefuye was formally Deputy High Commissioner to the United Kingdom, High Commissioner to Jamaica and Belize, and also served as a delegate to the United Nations. Before his tenure to the Nigerian Foreign Service, he was Head of the Department of History at the University of Lagos, Nigeria. His practical skills in governance and conflict prevention/resolution are proven in the most senior political circles, and with rebel leaders alike.
 Professor Adefuye's country experience includes: Jamaica, Kenya, Lesotho, Malawi, Mozambique, Nigeria, Papua New Guinea, Sierra Leone, Ghana, Guinea Bissau, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Swaziland, Tanzania, The Gambia, Uganda, United Kingdom, United States of America, and Zimbabwe.
 Ambassador Adefuye is a happy man and a father of six children.

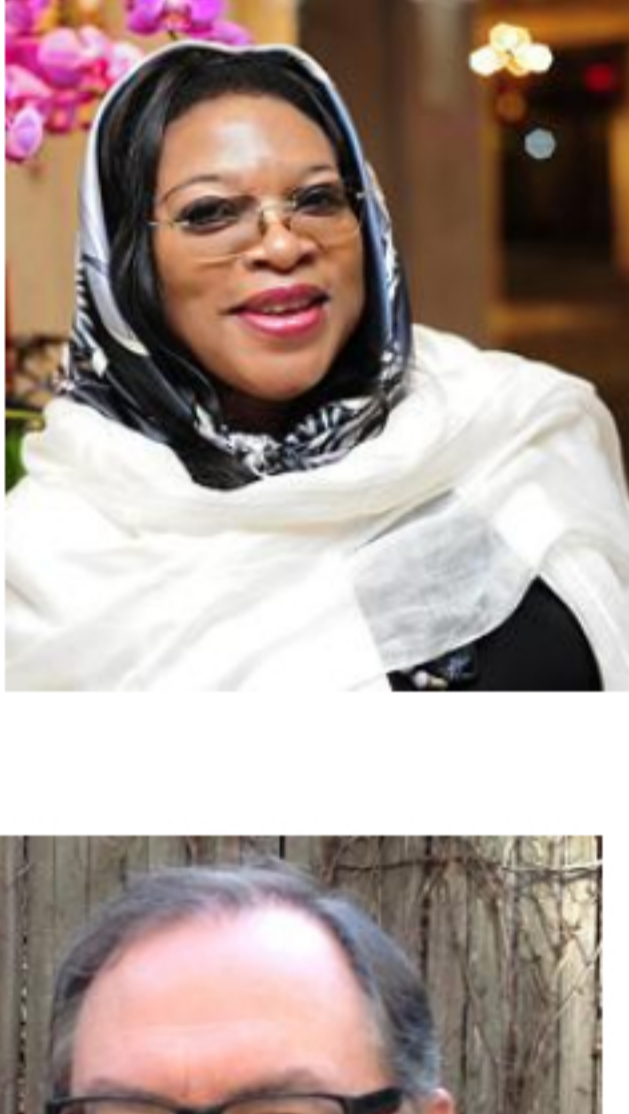

H. E. Muhammad Rabiu Musa Kwankwaso, Fnse
The Executive Governor of Kano State
 His illustrious journey in politics can be traced to his student days when he served as the National Assistant Secretary General of Kano State Students Association (NKAASS) as well as the President of the Kano State Students Association (KASSA) at the University of Nottingham, UK. His active party politics started with his election as member of Representative in the 1992, representing Madobi Federal Constituency. His subsequent election as Deputy Speaker in the House brought him in the limelight of national politics. This was however short-lived as the Civilian Administration was truncated by a Military Coup.
 In 1994, Kwankwaso was elected to the National Conference, which fashioned out the constitution that later ushered in the fourth republic. Under this dispensation, he contested and won the governorship ticket of Kano State – a position he held from 1999-2003. During his tenure, the state witnessed some milestone developmental projects.
 He was appointed Federal Minister of Defence in July 1991 as Head of Operations. He represented the North-West zone on the Board of Niger Delta Development Commission, from 2009 to 2010.
 Ever passionate and patriotic, Kwankwaso contested for the position of governor of Kano State on the platform of the (PDP) in the April 2011 elections, during which he defeated the All Nigeria Peoples Party (ANPP). His government under former governor Ibrahim Shekaru, setting the record of returning to the governorship seat after vacating the position for eight years.
